

STATEMENT from Friends of Cancer Research on COVID-19, Dr. Anthony Fauci, and the Public Servants We Need Now More Than Ever

Like millions of our colleagues, friends, and family, Friends of Cancer Research is adjusting to the rapidly changing public health crisis being caused by COVID-19 (Novel Coronavirus). We are steadfast in our commitment to patients and will be working everyday to move our research, scientific programs, and policy solutions forward on their behalf.

While we will keep you updated on our work in the coming weeks, right now it is more important to say “thank you” to the thousands of public health servants on the front lines that have fought for decades to save millions of lives. They are whom we need now more than ever.

During extraordinary times we lean on extraordinary heroes - and once again - as we have during nearly every global health emergency over the last five decades, our nation is leaning on the magnificent and selfless leadership of Dr. Anthony Fauci.
